

Frequently Asked Questions

Regarding the Reorganization of The Westport Funds into the Hennessy Cornerstone Mid Cap 30 Fund

Why was this reorganization pursued?

Westport Advisers, LLC, the investment advisor to The Westport Funds, recently completed a strategic review of the management and operations of The Westport Funds and determined, in light of Westport Advisers' succession planning considerations, that it would be advisable to pursue a reorganization with another fund group. They sought a mutual fund company that they could feel confident would provide the same excellent portfolio management and customer service that shareholders of The Westport Funds currently receive, and that search led them to Hennessy Advisors, Inc.

When did the reorganization become effective?

Shareholders of The Westport Funds voted in favor of the reorganization on Sept. 19, 2016, and the reorganization was effective as of September 26, 2016.

What fund are Westport Funds shareholders invested in following the reorganization and what was the conversion ratio?

The assets of the Westport Fund and the Westport Select Cap Fund have been transferred into the Hennessy Cornerstone Mid Cap 30 Fund, a concentrated, mid-cap fund with a similar investment objective and a long track record of proven performance. All Westport Fund and Westport Select Cap Fund shareholders, including holders of both the Class R and Class I shares, received Institutional Class shares of the Hennessy Cornerstone Mid Cap 30 Fund.

Based on closing fund prices as of September 23, shareholders of The Westport Funds received shares of the Hennessy Cornerstone Mid Cap 30 Fund (HIMDX) as follows:
